OVERVIEW OF COURSE
Why do people protest and organize to change the world around them? Most of the time people follow the rules, obey authorities, and put up with situations – even situations they consider unjust and immoral. Yet, in some cases, people join together to press for change. Why do people sometimes protest but more often not? How do movements work, and why do some succeed while others fail?

This course explores the origins, dynamics and consequences of social movements from a sociological perspective. Over the semester, we will examine a wide range of topics including: the emergence of movements, recruitment and leadership, interactions of movements with the media, political authorities and the broader public, tactics (e.g. nonviolent direct action, litigation), and the factors contributing to the success and failure of movements.

We will learn about several historically important social movements. For example, we will study recent social movements in Western democracies including the civil rights, women’s, environmental, farm worker, pro-life, and pro-choice movements. In addition, we will look at several social movements from around the globe. Studying social movements allows us to examine much broader questions of social and political theory. These include questions about the nature of power, conflict, political authority and legitimacy, and the relation between human agency and historical change.

COURSE GOALS
The major goals of this course are:

• Introduce major theoretical perspectives and debates in the study of social movements
• Learn about important historical and contemporary social movements especially in the United States
• Understand the diverse motivations and goals that activists bring to movements
• Consider the major social forces that shape the organization, tactics and success (or failure) of movements
• Learn to use sociological theories and empirical research to analyze social movements

Develop analytic, writing, public speaking, and discussion skills
COURSE FORMAT
Each week, I will post questions on sakai prior to class meetings to guide your reading and prepare for our meetings. The basic format of our meetings will combine characteristics of a seminar and a lecture course. We will use discussion, short lectures, films, and presentations throughout the semester. Discussion will be used to critically evaluate theoretical ideas, case studies, and your own experience and observations of protest and movements. Short lectures will be used to help place course readings in relation to the broader historical and sociological scholarship in the field. Your individual success and our collective success hinges on active participation which includes reading course material and reflecting on them prior to class meetings for which they are assigned. I will provide questions that ask you to reflect on important themes and questions as you do the reading. Upper-level courses are most successful when they build a sustained, cumulative conversation among the same participants.

READING
This course has five books that are available at the campus bookstore and online booksellers:
(1) David Snow and Sarah Soule. A Primer on Social Movements
(3) Theda Skocpol and Vanessa Williamson. The Tea Party and the Remaking of Republican Conservatism. NY: Oxford University Press.

All additional articles and book chapters will be available on sakai as PDF files.

MEETINGS AND CONTACTING ME
You can drop by to meet with me during office hours or by appointment other times of the week. Email is generally the best method to reach me with smaller questions. Immediately after class is another good time to have short discussions or set up meetings. You can arrange meetings with Sally by email or immediately before or after class.

REQUIREMENTS/ASSIGNMENTS
Reading Notes 30%
First Short Paper 15%
Second Short Paper 20%
Mid-Term Exam 15%
Final Exam 20%

Reading Notes/Class Assignments (30%): You will turn in reading notes at the beginning of each class meeting. These will take the form of a short (approximately one page) commentary on the reading for the day. Your notes can be handwritten or typed, but you must bring a physical copy to class. I will post questions on sakai each Friday that pose questions for the class meetings in the upcoming week. I will only accept notes submitted in person at the very beginning of class and by students who participate in the class meeting. Your reading notes will help prepare you for participation in class discussion and activities, and they will help you keep relevant notes over the course of the semester. Notes will be graded on a simple scale of full (2 points), partial (1.5 points), or no credit (0 points). There are twenty-five class meetings on which notes will be due. You can miss reading notes for three class meetings without having a negative impact on your grade (for example, if you are sick for one class meeting). So, earning 44 points equals a 100 for this portion of the course. If you must miss a class for an approved university activity, you can make arrangements with me to turn in your notes before (but not after) the relevant class meeting.

First Short Paper (15%): Due October 6th. For this paper, you will read and review a biography of a movement activist or leader using theories of movement participation to explain the individual’s experience of activism. I will provide a list of possible books on sakai. You may propose other books, but you must have alternative books approved by me at least one week before the deadline. Estimated length is 5-6 pages.

Second Short Paper (20%): Due November 10th. For this paper, you will collect and analyze media coverage of protest and social movements to address major debates about the media and movements. Estimated length is 10-12 pages. Further details will be provided in class including strategies to collect and analyze data.

Mid-term Exam (15%): On September 27th. Our mid-term and final exam will combine identification, short answer and essay questions, and we will discuss the details with example questions later in the semester.

Final Exam (20%): On December 13th. See above for format.

GRADES
The grading scale for this course is: A=100-94; A-=93-91; B+=90-88; B=87-84; B-=83-81; C+=80-78; C=77-74; C-=73--71; D+=70-68; D=67--61; F=60 and below.

POLICIES
If you have some extraordinary set of circumstances that make it impossible for you to meet a deadline, you must see me prior to the deadline. Extraordinary circumstances might include a serious illness or death in your family, but it would not include personal travel, extracurricular activities, or fulfilling the requirements of other courses.

Sakai will be used for announcements and to make copies of the syllabus, handouts, and assignments available to you. You should check sakai regularly (2-3 times a week) for announcements related to course assignments and schedule.

HONOR CODE
Your participation in this course is covered by the UNC Honor Code (http://honor.unc.edu/honor/code.html). If you have questions about any forms of academic dishonesty please see me, and I will be happy to clarify. In this course, you should be especially attentive to plagiarism. The UNC Writing Center has a handout that describes what plagiarism is, why it should be avoided, and how to avoid it. Here’s the link: http://www.unc.edu/depts/wcweb/handouts/plagiarism.html
